Over 800 teachers are expected to attend the three days meeting Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week of the Northwest Missouri Teachers Association at the Normal School, when some of the leading educators in the Middle West will make addresses. The principal speaker on Thursday afternoon when the meeting opens is H. B. Wilson, of Topeka, Kans., superintendent of public instruction; on Friday I. I. Cammack of Kansas City, superintendent of public schools, will be on the program, while Dr. Cameron Harmon, president of Missouri Wesleyan College, and P. G. Holden, the corn expert, will also be heard. It is planned to have a public meeting for farmers at which Mr. Holden will tell them some interesting things about corn breeding, but the exact date for it has not yet been named.

The complete program for the grade and rural sectional conference on Friday morning has been arranged and is as follows:

9 a. m. Invocation, Rev. Gilbert S. Cox.

Class demonstration work in agriculture by Nodaway rural pupils.

Correlation of agriculture, arithmetic and composition, by W. H. Burr of Maryville.

What should be expected of a pupil at the end of the first year in school, by Birley England of Harrison county.

Why and how accredit our schools? Anna M. Laird, Atchison county.

Class room and play ground manners, Mabel Merrigan, Conception Junction.

Lecture by P. G. Holden.

The detailed program of the oratorical and singing contests has not yet been announced, but it is learned that a larger number of participants will be entered in these departments than at any previous meeting.

The district association is officially recognized as a branch of the state association this year and on this account a larger number of teachers from the adjoining counties will be in attendance than has formerly been the case. The combination of athletics a foot ball game between the Normals and Tarkio, the corn show and domestic science exhibits together with the interesting sessions of the teachers, will serve to attract a large number of additional visitors during the three days and the committee on rooms and entertainment is working hard on final details of plans.

HOG BREEDERS BANQUETED

Visitors for the Goodspeed and Harvey Sales Today Entertained at Hotel Bainum Last Night.

A banquet was given at the Hotel Bainum last evening in honor of visiting breeders here for the sales of Chester White and O. I. C. hogs of Frank Goodspeed & Son and J. H. Harvey. The Goodspeed sale was held yesterday and the Harvey sale is being held this afternoon. The affair was given by Messrs. Goodspeed and Harvey.

Visitors in attendance were from six different states, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Iowa and Texas. James Moore of the White Breeders' Companion of Rochester, Ind., was the toastmaster and talks were made by Fred Hull, Lawrence Ogden, R. P. Hosmer, Frank Goodspeed and J. H. Harvey of this city and a number of the visiting breeders.

John Barber of Skidmore was in Maryville on business yesterday.

WILL ADMIT BY BADGE ONLY

Maryville Folks As Well As Delegates Must Pay Registration Fee to Attend Convention Sessions.

Maryville folks who want to attend the sessions of the State Sunday School convention November 20-22, will be required to pay the registry fee of $1 as do all convention delegates. No one will be admitted to any session of the convention without one of the official pin badges. Miss Eva M. Davis, who has charge of the home attendance, says that the rule will apply also to all county Sunday school officers, together with state officers from President Danforth and Secretary Herman Bowmar on down.

Secretary Bowmar gives the following reasons to the local committee for enforcing this rule:

"First: To keep children and all others who are not interested in Sunday school work, but who would go for the entertainment that the convention affords, from crowding out the delegates who come from a distance.

"Second: All large conventions of this type charge an admittance fee to help pay expenses, and all delegates who come from a distance have to pay this $1.00 admittance fee in addition to their traveling expenses and board, therefore it would not be fair to them to allow those who have no other expenses to pay to go in free of charge."

SERMON SERIES BY REV. COX

Protestantism in America Will Form Subject for Talks on Some Leading Denominations.

The Rev. Gilbert S. Cox, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city, will give a series of sermons at the Sunday evening services on Protestantism in America and some contributions of the four leading denominations.

On Sunday evening, November 4, Presbyterians will be the subject. John Calvin, theologian and statesman, who laid the foundations of Republican form of government; John Knox, Scotland's greatest reformer; John Witherspoon, educator, patriot and signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Woodrow Wilson, our president, will be mentioned.

On November 11, the Baptists and the supporters of Cromwell, the inspiration of John Bunyan, the followers of Roger Williams, the exponents of religious toleration and political liberty in America, will be the subject.

The last sermon on November 18 will be on the Methodists and John Wesley, the Savior of England in the 18th Century and founder of the world's largest protestant denominations. He was the moulder of the highest religious and political ideals of the 20th Century.

HAMLIN HOME BURNS

IS TOTAL LOSS—FEW HOUSEHOLD GOODS WERE SAVED.

THE FAMILY WERE ASLEEP

Awakened At Midnight As Roof of the Kitchen Fell — Loss Estimated At Over $4,000, Partly Insured.

Fire last night destroyed the home of Ed Hamlin, 501 East Seventh street together with all the household goods. What few articles of furniture were saved were badly damaged by smoke and water.

The fire was discovered at midnight, the family being awakened by a loud crash as the roof of the kitchen fell in. The fire department was immediately called and response was prompt. Two streams of water were soon playing on the flames, but the fire had gained such headway that little progress was made, other than to keep it from spreading. The house was a large one with the sleeping rooms at some distance from the kitchen, where the fire evidently started, a hot fire having been built in the range earlier in the evening.

Mr. Hamlin carried $1,700 insurance on the house and household goods with the total damage estimated at over $4,000.

Miss Cora Young, a roomer at the Hamlin home was badly burned when she returned to the house to look for her pocketbook. She recovered it only to lose it later in the yard. Mr. Hamlin was severely burned about the hands while trying to remove some furniture from one of the rooms. The fire department make a quick run to the scene and found the water pressure good, but despite heroic efforts of the men they were unable to stop the progress of the flames.

STOVE EXPLODES IN OFFICE

Occupants of Rooms on North Side of Square Given Scare—Damage in Rooms of John B. Cox.

The explosion of an oil stove in the offices of John B. Cox, manufacturer of a remedy for pneumonia, 115½ East Fourth street, at noon today caused occupants of the building a bad scare. Mr. Cox had left his office, leaving an oil stove burning. It some manner it became overheated and exploded. J. M. Allen, of the realty firm of Allen Brothers, with offices across the hallway, heard the explosion and summoned the fire department. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals after damage to the amount of several hundred dollars was done. The force of the explosion blew out one of the front windows of the office scattering broken glass over the sidewalk and street below, causing pedestrians to hustle for places of safety.

CHRISTIAN CONVENTION INCLUDES BIG COMMUNION SERVICE.

HEAR NOTED SPEAKERS

Many Go From Maryville to Attend Sessions of International Meeting at Kansas City.

A number of members of the Christian church left today for Kansas City, where they will attend the International Convention of Christian Churches, the largest religious gathering in the world. Those who left today and others who will go later, include: Mrs. Robert Lyle, Mrs. R. L. McDougal, Mrs. J. R. Brink, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goforth and Miss Doris Goforth, Mrs. George Hartley, Rev. and Mrs. C. Emerson Miller, Mrs. J. B. Robinson, Mrs. J. S. Shinabargar, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Frank, G. B. Roseberry, and Mrs. Henry Westfall.

Among the speakers at the convention will be ex-Governor J. Frank Hanly of Indiana, Bishop Charles P. Anderson of Chicago, Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York, Judge J. L. Lobinger of Shanghai, China; the Rev. S. G. Inman of New York, Dr. S. H. Woodrow of St. Louis, Mr. Daniel A. Poling of Boston, the Rev. John E. Pounds of Ohio, the Rev. C. S. Medbury, Des Moines; Dr. Robert Coffin, Albany, N. Y.; Gen. Z. T. Sweeney, Columbus, Ind.

President J. H. Haymaker of Wichita, Kan., will deliver the annual address today and there will be several addresses of welcome and responses tonight. The annual women's session will be Thursday.

Friday's meeting promises to be interesting. For a long period there has been an attempt to organize the Christian convention into a more orderly and democratic assembly. The efforts have been opposed by delegates objecting to congregational representation. This objection became so pronounced at the last annual meeting held in Des Moines, Ia., that a committee was appointed to report a more feasible plan. This committee, headed by Gen. Z. T. Sweeney of Columbus, Ind., many years a leading minister, and United States minister to Turkey under President Harrison, is expected to pour pure democratic oil upon the troubled ecclesiastical waters.

Saturday the Bible schools and colleges will have their inning.

Next Sunday afternoon, a communion for probably fifteen thousand persons will be held in Convention Hall.

These services will be carried out without instruction from the pulpit. No sermon will be preached. Five hundred deacons and fifty elders will serve the tables, which will be laid with the silver and linen of Kansas City churches. At the appointed hour a hymn will be sung, the congregation will join in responsive Scripture reading from a printed order of service and the emblems are passed to the vast throng of followers of the lowly Nazarene. The wine will be served in individual paper cups.

ODD FELLOWS TO BUY BONDS

Members Will Subscribe As Individuals and Present Purchase to the Lodge.

Members of White Cloud Lodge, I. O. O. F., are going to purchase Liberty Bonds. At the regular meeting of the lodge last night it was decided that as many members as were willing, be assessed a small sum for the purchase of one or more bonds. The action was not taken in the name of the lodge but subscriptions will be made by individual members and the bonds purchased will be presented to the lodge. All of the members who were present at last night's meeting approved the plan.

NORMALS ARE GAME

SMILING AT DEFEAT, PREPARE FOR WILLIAM JEWELL FRIDAY.

ANOTHER STRONG TEAM

Normals Hope to Make Better Showing Than in Previous Game and Will Work Hard to Win.

In spite of three crushing defeats following each other in rapid succession from Graceland College, Springfield Normal and Drury College teams, the Normal Bearcats—the name still clings—are ready for a fourth game Friday when they will face another well oiled football machine, the William Jewell from Liberty. The Normals are about the gamest bunch of gridiron performers Maryville has had and after every drubbing they come up smiling, with a determination to make a better showing next time. Athletic Director Hanson and Coach George Palfreyman are making no claims for Friday's game, predicting no victory for the team, for they realize there's a hot fight in prospect. They do say the Normals are going to be in the game, and that the Jewells will have to go some to carry home the big end of the score.

The following dope from the camp of the Libertyites will prove interesting just now, coming from the team's publicity agents. It says:

William Jewell College of Liberty misses 'Lil Arthur Strauss, the human catapult, who was elected captain for this season, but elected to attend Phillips University at Enid, Okla., his home city. The absence of Strauss hurts considerably, but Coach Bowles has gotten together a well balanced team that is showing its mettle already. The Jewells were defeated by Missouri University in the opening tilt of the season by a score of 16 to 6, but gave the Tigers all they could conveniently take care of. Coach Bowles says he would have won the game with luck on his side. The big red team followed up the great showing at Columbia by vanquishing Tarkio, 41 to 0.

"The Jewell team took a rest this week and its next battle is with Maryville Normal on October 26."

Walter Hanson, athletic director, says that while it is a little early to make predictions, that he believes that William Jewell is a strong contender for the conference championship. The Normals have one game scheduled that they are anxious to win, the game with Tarkio here on November 2, during the district teachers' meeting.

Mr. Braniger was alone at home at the time, Mrs. Braniger being in Kansas City, a delegate to a church convention, and was engaged in firing the furnace when the explosion occurred. Mr. Braniger was painfully and seriously burned about the chest and front of the body and lower limbs, necessitating his removal to St. Francis hospital, where Dr. Chas. T. Bell was called to dress his burns. Mrs. Braniger was sent for and is expected home this evening.

SMASH HUN LINES

FRENCH STRUCK SWIFT AND TOOK 8,000 GERMAN PRISONERS.

WAS BRILLIANT ACTION

Advance Was Like Clockwork and Was One of the Most Cleverly Conceived Attacks of the War.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Paris, Oct. 24.—New French offensive against Loan has driven salient more than two miles deep into the German lines and resulted in the capture of 8,000 Teutons and a series of fortified towns and heights. Thirty big guns were taken. In the downpour of rain the attack was a surprise to the Germans and the French got into the third defense line before reserves got into action. The work of consolidated and strengthened lines during the night took place in the fight area of twelve square miles, which was covered with the dead Teutons.

"The enemy losses in the course of the day were large, in addition to those inflicted on him by our artillery preparation. The number of prisoners counted up to the present exceeds 7,500.

"In the enormous amount of material captured we have counted twenty-five heavy and field cannon.

"Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, our aviators carried out with audacity the missions imposed upon them, their machines flying fifty meters above the lines."

French Like Clockwork.

With the French Armies in France, Oct. 23.—The French troops this morning fought one of the most cleverly conceived and most brilliantly executed actions of the war. More than one thousand prisoners belonging to the famous Fifth Prussian Guards were taken and the French still continue their victorious progress.

The battle opened before dawn along a nine kilometer front from the northeast of Laffaux, about the neighborhood of Vauxaillon to LaRoyere Farm. Amid inky darkness, the French troops left their trenches and with a terrific barrage fire from the most powerful concentration of French guns ever gathered on such a short front, preceding them, they made their way toward, into, and over the first German positions, sweeping all resistance aside.

Swept Through Six Divisions.

Altogether, six German infantry divisions were aligned, facing the French attacking forces, but none of them was able to withstand the onslaught. The advance continued like clockwork.

The correspondent observed the battle from a point whence he could see the entire line and was able to watch the precision with which the artillery prepared the ground for the advance of the infantry and the methodical manner of the infantry's program.

BUILDING BOY CHARACTER.

The Boy Scout parade Saturday reminded us that in spite of the distractions of the war we have the boys still with us in full force and entitled to attention. The Scouts are doing good work in many ways, not the least bit of which, just now, is in selling liberty bonds. They are under splendid influences for the building of character, and are themselves a good influence among other boys. But, taking boys as a whole, comparatively few belong to the Scouts. Something must be done for the many thousands of others to aid in that sort of character building which leads to good citizenship.—St. Louis Star.

Every one of us can do his bit; we can each subscribe for a Liberty Loan Bond; and every dollar is as good as a bullet.

BACKACHE

(By V. M. PIERCE, M. D.)

In spite of the best care one takes of oneself, any part of the human machine is liable to become out of order. The most important organs are the stomach, heart and kidneys.

The kidneys are the scavengers and they work day and night in separating the poisons from the blood. It is only reasonable to believe that they are liable to derangement. Their signals of distress, however, are easily recognized and include such symptoms as backache, depressions, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic twinges, dropsy, gout.

The very best way to restore the kidneys to their normal state of health is to drink plenty of pure water and obtain from your favorite pharmacy a small amount of Anuric, which is dispensed by most every druggist. Anuric is inexpensive and should be taken before meals. It is much more potent than lithia and you will find that Anuric dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

A NERVOUS WRECK

Kirksville, Mo.—"I had a severe case of the la grippe and did not get along well afterward; it left me weak and a nervous wreck. I could not do anything. I went on this way for some time, just could not get back my health. I took many medicines but without results.

At last I began taking 'Favorite Prescription' and it soon built me up and gave me strength and I felt like a different person. Women who want a good medicine will find it in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—MRS. A. SHAIN, 402 W. Illinois Street.

ONLY GOOD DAILY PAPER THAT HAS NOT RAISED ITS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE YET

The St. Joseph News-Press Is About the Only One in This Section of the Country That Can Still Be Had at the Old Rate of $3.00 Per Year.

With one exception—the St. Joseph News-Press—the metropolitan newspapers in this section have followed the general tendency to raise prices and have increased their mail subscription rates. The enormous increase in white paper and all other materials for publication of newspapers is the occasion for the advances, which have ranged from 33⅓ to 100 per cent. Kansas City papers that were $3.00 and $5.20 are now $4.20 and $7.80. Topeka papers which were $4.00 are now $4.80 and $5.00. Des Moines papers formerly $2.00 are now $4.00. Omaha papers that were $2.00 and $4.00 are now $3.00 and $6.00. Lincoln papers that were $3.00 are now $4.00. St. Joseph dailies, with the exception of The News-Press, have gone from $3.00 to $4.00. The St. Joseph News-Press has not raised its price and is still $3.00 per year by mail. This paper has endeavored to meet the increased cost of paper by economies in its circulation department and has dispensed with its traveling collectors, relying upon its subscribers to forward their subscriptions when due.

The News-Press continues to be as it has been, an excellent daily newspaper giving the news of the world. It has many interesting and important features and an accurate and complete market report. The News-Press cartoons are widely copied and its editorials are accepted as substantial, patriotic expressions of sound American views.

No increase in subscription price has yet been announced, but with the steadily rising markets it is impossible to say how long the old rate will continue. Those who want a thoroughly high-class, independent, patriotic American newspaper with the complete news of the world and commercial markets,6 should subscribe promptly at the old price of $3.00 per year. Check or money order.—Adv.

DRIVE FOR BONDS ON TODAY

Many Towns and Cities are Observing Liberty Day, Named by the Governor as Half Holiday.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

St. Louis, Oct. 24.—Today is Liberty Day. A great drive is being made throughout Missouri and the nation for the success of the second Liberty Loan campaign.

Governor Gardner has declared a half holiday in the state. Schools will close at noon and there will be a general suspension of business throughout the state in the afternoon.

Patriotic demonstrations and parades with school children participating will be held in many Missouri towns. Liberty bond salesmen will tackle citizens on the streets in the homes and in business places.

Concerts by John Philip Sousa's Great Lakes Naval Band and a parade and rally will feature the St. Louis celebration.

Unless the second loan is fully subscribed to the amount of $5,000,000,000 by Saturday the government, it is said, probably will have to levy heavier taxes.

IT WAS "SOME DAY" IN OLD LONDON WHEN YANKEE TROOPS MARCHED THERE

Stolid British Warmed Up and Actually Embarrassed Our Boys With the Ardor of Their Greeting—Crowds Packed Ten Deep Along Line of March Showered Soldiers With Flowers and "Smokes."

London.—There have been great days in England since the outbreak of hostilities, but none greater than the one on which the newspapers announced that America was in the war. And it was palpable soon afterward that she was in it with both feet, ready to assist the allies in every way they had conceived. The speed with which money poured into the coffers of France and England from Uncle Sam's fat purse, the sending over of destroyers and the passing of the conscription bill was amazing to the Britishers, and the man in the street shouted his appreciation.

When khaki-clad troops poured into France and England in spite of the submarine peril the jolly fat Englishman felt like shaking the hand of everybody who had ever been in America. It was then that the Briton lost his phlegmatism, and he hurled his hat high in the air on the day that more than five thousand sons of the United States marched through London.

Never to Be Forgotten.

This again was a day never to be forgotten. There were the Stars and Stripes floating with the British Union Jack from the Westminster buildings. King George, the United States ambassador and high officers of the British service saluted America's brave sons as they strode past Buckingham palace at the end of the fine, wide thoroughfare known as the Mall.

Here was the first contingent in England of another "contemptible little army" which is to do or die in the battles against barbarism and so-called kultur.

You can get an idea of how interested were the Londoners concerning the march of the Americans when it is said that on the day before the event conversation mostly concerned the sons of Uncle Sam and the route of march. Evening newspapers published the streets where the Americans would be seen the following day, and Tommies and their officers were very keen to be on hand to add to the welcome.

The first Americans in uniform in the English metropolis probably were officers of General Pershing's staff when they were in London just before continuing the journey to the front. Aside from these (and comparatively few Londoners saw them) England knew little of the American soldier's makeup beyond the Remington pictures of cowboys and a stray picture in the papers. So when the Britons knew they would have a chance to see American troops in London they came from all over the country to see and to cheer.

Streets Lined Ten Deep.

The weather man turned out a fairly respectable day for the occasion and the sun kept on coming and going, while airplanes buzzed through the clouds like policemen of the skies. A half-dozen observation balloons floated gracefully along a mile high over the English capital.

When the American troops reached the Horse Guards parade one could see English girls on chairs peering out of windows in their efforts to get glimpses of the American soldiers.

The throng, lined ten deep in some places and extending all along the route of march, naturally was a mixed one. Here were flower girls of the adipose, elderly, London type, pitching precious roses and violets in the path of the Americans. The foreign office, which faces the admiralty, was sending its crowd of workers to witness the sight, and those who could not leave there sought places at windows overlooking the Horse Guards parade. Not even in the other times of intense excitement had London seen such a dense and interested throng.

For some time folks waited, the music of the Guards bands being heard long before the United States soldiers actually were in front of the admiralty or foreign office. Finally came the silence, the bands having ceased, and then the steady tread of the men in khaki, the warmly welcomed brothers in arms of the British, French and Italians.

Liked Americans' Looks.

"America forever!" shouted one man, believing that he was giving a fairly good imitation of the way "America" is pronounced by Uncle Sam's sons.

There were loud hurrahs every now and again, but when there are five thousand men passing four deep these hurrahs cannot be continuous. Besides, the Englishman and the Englishwoman were thinking, and they liked the clean-cut physiognomies of the soldiers.

Cigarettes were thrown in the path of the men amid cheers. Right in front of me stood a Scotch major at salute. Hardly a man kept his hat on his head. Either he was waving it or he was uncovered in deference to United States. There were tears in the eyes of some women as they scanned carefully every face, some of which because of the vast turnout occasionally looked self conscious.

"Oh, please smile; we love you all," said one girl, apparently oblivious to the fact that she hugg on the arm of a prepossessing young lieutenant.

Still, the Americans went forth as if to the trenches. To them perhaps the ordeal was more trying, for such fervor in a strange land must be appreciated by every soul honored. Company after company passed with lips tightened and teeth set.

"God bless you!" exclaimed an old woman. An American soldier bowed acknowledgment. The fixed faces seemed to realize and finally the corners of mouths curved upward when a Cockney woman yelled:

Give Us a Wink, Wot?

"You are a bit of all right y' are. Give us a wink wot?"

One of the Americans actually did his best and the Cockney female shouted:

"Bli-me, I knowed yer face wasn't made o' wax. An' if e' ain't got the witest teeth I ever saw."

Another Guard's band drowned laughter and further comments and the men tramped on through the double archways leading to Whitehall, their shouldered rifles above the banks of men and women. Presently an automobile came to a halt a dozen yards from the men and women and a beautiful young American girl whipped out an American flag and waved it energetically. Quite a number of the soldiers saw it and only discipline forbade their turning their heads after they had gone by.

"Stick a feather in 'is 'at and call him Yankee Doodle," sang a young woman who had no taste in sartorial color harmony and who thought she was giving a fair rendition of the American national anthem.

"They don't like that," declared a man. "It's the Star-Spangled Banner yer ought to sing."

Just then the American girl in a sweet voice started with "Oh, say, can you see——" and the Englishman with her continued the air without knowing the words.

In the Horse Guards, that interesting old building, in Whitehall, there was an impressive and unforgetable sight. The uniforms of color, the fighting attire of yesteryear, those men in red coats, white leather breeches and tall pointed black boots, stood in a line at attention, their swords at salute to the American soldiers.

The color caught the eyes of the boys from Maine and San Francisco, and some of them did not know quite what to make of it.

Sent to Discipline Naughty Bill.

However, they realized the honor of the turning out of these strapping lifeguards, now in red, white and black, with brilliant brass helmets, who perhaps not so very long ago were up to their waists in mud in the trenches when wearing their fighting gear. Most of them had been wounded and thus were sent back to the Guard at Whitehall.

Further along the sons of Uncle Sam marched to the wide Whitehall, and in a few minutes they were passing the admiralty, where sailors and naval officers stood thrilled with interest at the marching line before them.

"The Day," shouted a sailor. "The Day when Naughty Bill is to get 'is."

"Yes," said another man, "ain't it a shame to think we can't do more than roast the chief 'un."

"Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching," came from a thousand throats as the band struck up this familiar tune. They realized they were doing something to vanquish any gloom.

"On through the mouth of Whitehall to Trafalgar square, where stands the statue to Lord Nelson and the Landseer lions. Each lion carried its full quota of men and boys who shouted, clapped and sang from their vantage points.

"I guess and reckon that Amurica ain't goin' to stand no nonsense from them baby killers," opined an Englishman who apparently thought he had a firm grip on New Yorkese. You see the Englishman is about as strong on the imitation of an American as the American is on English.

It was palpable that some of the men in the throng had worn their most "American" looking clothes. They copied the American way of bending down their felt hats in front—in other words, it is now fashionable to the American in England.

The narrows of the Strand were banked with cheerful countenances, and now and again flowers and smokes fell in the roadway. Australians, New Zealanders and Canadians gave their meed of applause to the American troops.

And when it was all over that day you heard precious little else but praise for the American troops and comments on their good looks. And they were a pre-possessing lot, too.

Until sundown the Stars and Stripes flew at the staff atop the house of Parliament. Der Tag was one which raised perhaps the German eyebrows, for the German officers have been given to understand that Americans could never brave submarines so numerous and send men for the firing line. In fact, one of the German officer prisoners said as much to a Yankee who ejaculated:

"All right, old sport, and how did we get here?"—New York Herald.

By Midnight Wednesday Sept. 12th

Up to midnight, September 12th, during a period of 8½ months, we sold and delivered to tire dealers more United States Tires than we sold to dealers during the entire 12 months of 1916.

This phenomenal sales increase was made notwithstanding our epoch-making sales increases of 1916 over 1915.

These record-breaking sales increases of 1917 over 1916 and our record-breaking sales increases of 1916 over 1915 definitely and finally prove three facts:

1. The supremacy of United States Tires.
2. The fact that the vast army of automobile owners who used United States Tires in 1916 are using them in 1917 on the sheer merit of their experience.
3. The fact that another vast army of automobile owners have been won over to the use of United States Tires in 1917 on the sheer superiority of our tires over other tires that they have tried.

Cornmeal 50-50 Biscuits.

A highly palatable food for the breakfast menu is the 50 per cent corn meal biscuits, according to today's bulletin from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, of Washington, co-operating with this newspaper in a nation-wide drive to conserve the food resources. The following recipe is recommended:

1 cup corn meal.
1 cup wheat flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons shortening.
Liquid sufficient to mix to proper consistency (½ to ¾ cup).

All measurements are level full. Sift together the flour, meal, salt, sugar and baking powder twice. Have the shortening as cold as possible and cut it into the mixture with a knife, finally rubbing it in with the hands. Mix quickly with cold liquid (milk, skim milk or water), forming a fairly soft dough which can be rolled on the board. Turn onto a flour board; roll into a sheet not over ½ inch thick; cut into rounds; place these in lightly floured biscuit tins (or shallow pans), and bake 10 to 12 minutes in a rather hot oven.

Corn Meal, Soy Beans and Wheat Biscuits.

½ cup soy bean meal.
1 cup sifted white flour.
2 tablespoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon sugar.
2 tablespoons shortening.
Liquid sufficient to mix (½ to ¾ cup).

Mix the meal, flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and shortening together exactly as mentioned in the 50-50 biscuits and handle the dough and bake in the same way.

Kings Without Countries

By G. KAY SPENCER

Constantine of Greece.

A debt of gratitude a people wished to pay and the attempted curbing of the elemental passions of a race can truly be said to be responsible for the passing of Constantine of Greece.

At the inception of the great war, the Greeks, mindful of the Franco-British aid in freeing them from Turkish tyranny, throbbed and pulsed throughout their little kingdom with every move of the armies of Britain and of France. They fondly recalled the memories of General Maison and Lord Byron, names forever identified with the Hellenic struggle for freedom. And so this volatile, heroic people were determined to pay a great debt—but there was an obstacle, a powerful obstacle, indeed, and that was their own ruler, until then beloved and admired by all his subjects.

Constantine—uxorious of a Teuton wife, a sister of the Attila of Potsdam.

Constantine—a product of the militaristic school of dehumanized fossils with headquarters in Berlin.

Constantine — the debris that obstructed the flow of the Greek blood of honor.

Obdurate remained this leader of his people as they clamored to be led to the capture of the Byzantium capital, Constantinople, and to force a victorious passage for the Entente to the Black Sea.

The much-enduring patience of the Entente Allies with the shuffling policies of King Constantine at length became exhausted. They proceeded to employ measures which military considerations dictated.

It was not improbable that the King welcomed the resort to force on the part of the Entente, for it gave him a plausible excuse to his royal brother-in-law in the case of the Hun victory which he seemed to foresee.

When the Allies came to Saloniki by the official invitation of the Greek government, they were generally welcomed, apparently, save by the court and the German interests. The royal interpretation of the Greek-Serbian treaty as a merely Balkan convention disgusted Venizelos and his partisans, then, certainly the great bulk of the people.

The Allies, whether by their fault or not, have figured as the principals in a series of deplorable incidents which have been accentuated by the pro-German propaganda to such an extent that a real feeling of antipathy to the Entente has been engendered.

The seizure of the Greek territorial islands, the capture of the Greek forts in Macedonia, the blockade of Greek ports, the taking over of the Greek army and their navy, raised by popular subscription; the taking over of telegraph, telephone and cable lines, the irrelative ultimatums and the policing of Greek cities with Allied marines, all brought about by the course of the Greek government, have alarmed and hurt the Hellenic pride.

The choice between heroism and humiliation was made when Serbia called in vain. The, at the time, nascent psychological reaction against the Entente's more or less gentle coercion, had grown and fostered in Constantine's element, until on June 12, 1917, the high tide of Greek governmental perverseness had to be met by the elimination of Constantine.

BY THE HILL ROAD

By JEAN STUART.

The young woman, sitting on a log in the summer shade, was conscious that someone was coming up from the hill road, and that the bushes at the edge of the road had been parted. She saw that a man was looking out of the tangle.

"I beg your pardon, if I have disturbed you," he said courteously, removing his hat. "But I used to be familiar with—with this—some years ago, and I am trying to recall this place. It is so much changed that I can hardly realize it is the same."

The young woman followed the direction of his eyes. He was looking at a disordered heap that had once been a chimney, and at overthrown and rotting blocks of wood that had once been the pillars of a house.

"Time seems to have made many changes here," she said quietly, without any embarrassment. He looked around again, with a lingering glance, and sat down on the other end of the log.

"This is the remains of the house in which I was born," he said thoughtfully, after a silence. "It has been a long time since I saw it. Right about over there was my room. There was a rose vine over the window—my mother planted it—see—a wild branch of it is growing yet. And that old chimney! I couldn't realize that the old house would be gone when I came again. If you know what it means, I believe I have a heartache because the old house has fallen down."

The girl's eyes rested softly on the decayed chimney.

"I was wondering before you came," she acknowledged, "if those who used to live here had forgotten all about the old home. I am merely a summer boarder over at Farmer Gray's, and have heard a little about—about you, I think—and of the others."

There was a long silence before he answered her.

"I found out early that I would go out and make my way in the world," he said. "I had hard work the first five years. But things began to come my way at last. I could build a beautiful home about this ruin if I wished—and I was thinking as I came out here that I would like to do that—but now—I am not so sure. I am afraid it would be the loneliest place in all the world—haunted with ghosts. Everything I ever loved here is gone."

"You speak, perhaps, of the dogs—or is it the cows and horses?" she asked.

"I spoke more especially," he said, "of a tiny girl that I used to call my little sweetheart. Where is she now, I wonder? How the years rob us as they go!"

The girl turned and looked at him.

"But doubtless the years gave you far more than they took away," she said steadily. "One finds it that way in life. A man loses the baby sweetheart he thought he loved. Beg pardon—it is almost dinner time with the Grays, and I must go."

"But—wait a moment!" he cried, greatly perturbed, as she was going past him. "I asked—I asked again and again—and when I found that she was to be an heiress—and I was a mere drudge in a hardware house, with grimy hands and ill-fitting clothes, I did not ask again."

She had paused, the ruffled white sunbonnet hanging back from her face and framing it in.

"I have no doubt you have even forgotten how she looked," she said presently.

"She had a world of golden hair," he replied. "Her name was Elsie—and there was a dimple in each cheek when she laughed. Perhaps you have heard the Grays speak of her. They were fond of her once."

"Yes," she said, moving slowly toward the opening in the tangled brushwood. "I have heard them speak of her. She was adopted, as you say, and was educated, and had the world at her feet, one might say. And yet I heard—it seems to me that someone told me—she came back here not long ago—to look at the old home—and to cross the creek at the old place—"

He had one fleeting glimpse of her as she looked back at him from between the leaves. A flood of rosy color had swept over either cheek, and in the midst of the rose was a dimple.

A look of amazed comprehension flashed into his face—but before he could speak she was gone.

He had always been swift of foot, however—and besides—

He knew the way to Farmer Gray's, and the way led across the little creek at the foot of the hill.

Useless Wishes.

"I wish I had not done it. I wish I had not said it." How often we hear and say these words. But of what use are they? Nothing was ever dragged back from the past by a wish that came afterward. It is the wish that comes before, and prompts us to be cautious, because we desire to do and say what is best, that is worth anything. Preventing is better than repenting, because preventing spares the repenting that is unable to recall the deed done, and the word spoken.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels — there's no need of having a sallow complexion — dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

NEWS FROM ALL NORTHWEST MISSOURI

Amazement was rife in Trenton one day last week when a hobo came walking into town and performed a service for humanity that belied his purposeless mode of living. He told the railway authorities of a drove of cattle caught in a trestle and because of his timely information the section men rushed to the place and flagged a double header freight train just in time to prevent a disastrous wreck and the destruction of thirteen valuable animals.

An unpatriotic attempt by an overheated coffee urn to burn the Woodhotel at Gallatin one day last week came near being successful and was thwarted only by the timely arrival, says the North Missourian, of a fire-extinguisher in the hands of Landlord Woodruff himself.

So successful during the past season was Chas. L. Ficklin of Maysville in his lecture work on the chautauqua and lecture course platform that his entire time will be required to meet the demands of this work in the future, and his paper, the DeKalb County Herald, will henceforth be under the editorship of Thos. R. Shaw, Jr., of the Jamesport Gazette, who has turned the management of his own paper over to his employes until final arrangements are made for its disposal.

While helping tear down an old livery barn at Gallatin Elmer Posten received a serious injury, says the North Missourian. In some way a 30-penny spike was plunged almost through the man's wrist.

Last week a man entered the office of the Dearborn Democrat and announced his intention of making a farm sale. He estimated the proceeds of the coming event at only $1,500, but yielded to Editor Ives's advice to advertise liberally and was in due time pleasantly surprised to find the actual receipts of the sale to have reached and slightly exceeded $3,000 instead of $1,500.

We want to state that not quite "every newspaper in Northwest Missouri" was a victim of the Grant Lands Co. fraud. Here's one that said, "Nay, nay, Pauline," or words to that effect. We got our eyeteeth cut once; they are clean through—and so are we—with the foreign unknown advertiser who does not accompany his order with cash.—Dearborn Democrat.

The qualifications for a successful judge of baby shows are aptly mentioned by the Liberty Advance in telling of the baby show which was the most attractive feature of the Clay County Home Product Show last week. "The judges were tactful," says the article, "and diplomatic, and made the awards without breaking any more hearts than was absolutely necessary." There were twenty-nine babies including one pair of twins.

The Liberty Advance doesn't say where it got this one concerning wooden legs. One advantage of a man's having a wooden leg is that he doesn't have to worry about his sock; for he can fasten them up with carpet tacks. Wooden legs will never prove popular for women, however, for each woman's equipment would have to include one for housework, another for morning wear, another for afternoon social functions, a party leg and one to wear to church on Sunday.

Do you remember the boys' potato growing contest instituted last spring at Liberty by James Costello, a patriotic measure to increase food production? He offered substantial cash prizes to the boys raising the most potatoes on an eighth of an acre. Last week the prizes were awarded and Dean Flannery carried off first prize by digging 1,350 pounds of Irish Cobblers from his portion of ground and writing an account of how he did it. That amounts, says the Advance, to 22½ bushels. The runners-up in the contest were Gilbert Lancaster, 1,311 pounds; Ray Stevenson, 900 pounds and George Cole 810 pounds.

The highest price, so far as known, ever paid in Missouri or so large a flock of sheep was paid at a public sale near Mexico last week when R. S. Major, auctioneer, sold the Consadine flock of 354 purebred ewes to Carl Shrader of Paris at $23.50 a head. And strange to say, adds the Paris Mercury, Mr. Shrader bought them for speculation.

To carry 20 per cent of their capital stock and surplus in Liberty bonds was the unanimous decision of the Platte county bankers at their association meeting last week.

About one hundred dollars a head is the way the Maitland Herald estimates the cost of instructing the farmers of that locality in the selection of seed corn. At any rate the state spent several dollars advertising the meeting besides the cost of providing a demonstrator and then only eight persons accompanied the demonstrator to the field—"the faithful few" the Herald calls them—and it is to be inferred that most of them were boosters from other callings than everyday farming. In the same paper several items relating to the big crop of apples still demanding attention, short pastures requiring unseasonable feeding of livestock, preparations for the fall sales of purebred stock and the similar urgent activities of the farmers near Maitland contain a very satisfactory explanation of their absence from the seed corn meeting.

The owner of just an ordinary cheap motor car found himself the possessor of a car with a disappearing top the other day at Mound City, according to the News-Jeffersonian. He drove down to the depot to meet the morning passenger train and drew up alongside the track. He did not know that he had failed to get in the clear till the train pulled in and—presto, his car was still there but the top was gone.

The oldest man in DeKalb county and also the oldest reader of the Maysville Herald is Wm. R. Irwin, aged 94; and the Herald recently received a letter from him written by himself and renewing his subscription.

Utter amazement was the portion of Earl Young near Cainsville last week when he discovered 17 cases of whiskey hidden in his corn field. While he went to notify the officers of his find one case disappeared and now there are 16 cases of 192 pints in the vault at the city hall, says the News, waiting patiently for the owner to appear and claim them.

When the Rankins fed their 300 guests at the Tarkio Hereford sale they paid the local Red Cross women $500 for serving the banquet and the guests themselves contributed a pass-the-hat addendum of $101.50. At the sale the total receipts were $134,655, says the Avalanche, as compared with $89,500 at last year's sale. A special passenger train started the guests on their homeward trip and a special freight train hauled 24 carloads of cattle from the sale.

Holt county has five rural schools in which the new plan of "vitalized agriculture" is being put to test by Mrs. Alberta Green-Murphy, one of the fifteen county superintendents in the state entrusted with this experiment.

As only one of many philanthropic enterprises last spring R. A. Shaver of Plattsburg, furnished six acres of ground to twelve colored boys 12 to 14 years of age. He also furnished seed and a hand to do the plowing. Last week he bought from the boys the last consignment of their crops of onions, beans and potatoes, says the Plattsburg Leader, and each boy received for his share a $22 suit of clothes and one pair of shoes.
